

The DUNTROON DIGGER

October edition 2018

Editor: Mike Gray

Report on Wetland working-bee held Saturday 29th, September.

Further plant release work was done and a few more plantings were put in around the enhanced water-way areas. Substantial growth with numerous plantings at the southern approach was quite noticeable. Many plants were relieved from their protectors.

Volunteers assisting on the day were John, Owen, Daniel, Gill, Jan and Isobel Keeling, Kathryn Sim and her Mum. A grateful thanks as always.

And the “Wow” factor! Some were fortunate to have a close encounter with a Pukeko family on the day.

Fantastic!!

Owen King.

Duntroon Hotel Update:

There is still plenty happening at the Duntroon Hotel. Electricians and Plumbers and Joiners can be seen coming and going, as well as the regular builders. The owners are still fairly cagey about when they will be opening, but that's because they simply cannot guarantee a date yet. But they tell me they are down to organising details such as painters and floor coverings and fridges and chillers, ovens and extractor hoods, so it must be getting close. They also tell me they really appreciate the positive feedback from locals, both on their Facebook page and in person.

So, go look up Duntroon Hotel on Facebook and get the full story.....
